OFFICE OF ABORIGINAL AFFAIRS

A. Mission Statement

It is the mission of the Office of Aboriginal Affairs (OAA):

“To strengthen Government’s ability to address Aboriginal issues for the benefit of all Nova Scotians, while respecting Mi’kmaq culture and building a sustainable framework for Mi’kmaq-Government relations.”

B. Planning Context

Nova Scotia has 13 Mi’kmaq Bands with the population of these communities ranging from 206 in the Annapolis Valley First Nation to 3,356 in the Eskasoni First Nation. In total, there are 12,011 registered Indians in Nova Scotia as of December 31, 2000. Of these, 3,866 live off-reserve.<sup>1</sup> The registered Indian population in Nova Scotia is represented through a series of 13 band councils and two tribal councils, the Confederacy of Mainland Mi’kmaq and the Union of Nova Scotia Indians.

In addition, the Native Council of Nova Scotia is an off-reserve Aboriginal organization and the Natives Women’s Association provide Aboriginal women with a voice in the social, cultural and economic development of the Aboriginal community.

As is the case in other regions of Canada, Aboriginal communities in Nova Scotia face significant socio-economic challenges with regard to health status, employment, education and economic development both on and off reserve. For example:

- 16% of the Aboriginal population in Nova Scotia have less than a Grade 9 education versus 11% for the non-Aboriginal population.<sup>2</sup>
- While 12% of the non-Aboriginal population have a university degree, only 6% of the Nova Scotia’s Aboriginal population have completed university.<sup>2</sup>
- Nova Scotia Aboriginal youth unemployment rates were 27.7%. They were 33% more likely to be unemployed than their non-Aboriginal counterparts.<sup>2</sup>

OFFICE OF ABORIGINAL AFFAIRS

- Unemployment rates for the non-Aboriginal labour force in 1996 was 13.1%, while the Aboriginal unemployment rate was 24.6%.<sup>2</sup>
- Aboriginals in Nova Scotia are only two-thirds as likely to be working full-time as are non-Aboriginals.<sup>3</sup>
- Average incomes in the Aboriginal population were two-thirds of the non-Aboriginal population in 1995 and half the Aboriginal population over 15 years of age had incomes less than $10,000 annually.<sup>2</sup>
- 34% of Nova Scotia Aboriginal Children (0-14) live in lone parent families and 9.9% do not live with their birth parents.<sup>3</sup>

The Federal Government has primary fiduciary duty and constitutional responsibility for Aboriginal peoples in Canada. At the Federal level, responsibility for Aboriginal people is split between Indian and Northern Affairs Canada (Aboriginals living on-reserve and Inuit) and the Privy Council Office (Aboriginals living off-reserve - Métis and non-status Indians).

The Province has a role to play in addressing socio-economic issues that cross jurisdictional boundaries. Nova Scotia also has representation in the Mi'kmaq-Canada-Nova Scotia Forum which deal with a range of socio-economic issues affecting Nova Scotia's First Nations. In addition, the Province deals directly with the Mi'kmaq of Nova Scotia on a wide range of areas including taxation, gaming, and cultural issues.

Formed in 1998, the Office of Aboriginal Affairs is a central agency with a corporate role within the Government of Nova Scotia on Aboriginal matters. Over the next number of years the primary focus of the Office will be on leading the Province's involvement in a negotiation of treaty and related issues with the Nova Scotia Mi'kmaq and the Government of Canada.

The key challenges facing OAA in the 2002-03 fiscal year include the following:

- Leading a comprehensive negotiation process with the Federal Government and the Mi'kmaq of Nova Scotia on treaty and related issues.
- Developing an Aboriginal policy framework to assist in the provision of consistent, quality strategic advice and an approach on Aboriginal matters within Government.
- Supporting a broader understanding and awareness of Aboriginal issues in Nova Scotia and engaging stakeholders in an appropriate manner.
- Working to ensure staff have the necessary skill levels to carry out their responsibilities in a complex and challenging environment.

the Government's overall approach to Aboriginal issues.

E. Priorities 2002-03

1. Negotiations and Related Discussions

- During the coming year, Nova Scotia will be negotiating a Framework Agreement with the Mi'kmaq and the Government of Canada. This Agreement will outline the process and procedures of negotiations and identify the substantive issues to be negotiated by the parties.
- During 2002-03, the Government will develop an approach on consultation required in certain specific circumstances. The approach will address the nature of and process regarding Government's consultation with Nova Scotia Mi'kmaq and will address the specific needs of provincial departments and agencies.
- The Office of Aboriginal Affairs will continue to coordinate provincial departments and agencies input into and participation in negotiations of treaty rights and related issues. This corporate approach to preparing for negotiations will ensure provincial interests are fully identified and represented through the negotiations process.
- The Office of Aboriginal Affairs will develop and implement a strategy to enhance public awareness and understanding on the negotiation process. Creating public understanding is critical to the successful resolution of these issues. OAA will need to utilize a range of strategic communication methods to increase public awareness and knowledge of the processes.
- The Government will take steps to ensure that the interests of municipalities, third parties and other stakeholders are understood and respected. This will involve clearly identifying stakeholders interests and developing a mechanism to provide timely and accurate information.

2. Aboriginal and Intergovernmental Relations

- At the National level, Nova Scotia is a committed participant in the Federal/Provincial/Territorial/Aboriginal (FPTA) Forum. As a result, we will continue to work with our colleagues in the National Forum to identify practical solutions to issues facing Aboriginal people. In the coming year, we will be achieving progress on the identified priorities in the areas of strengthening Aboriginal participation in the economy report and youth. At the provincial level, OAA will work with departments to identify opportunities and build capacities to adapt provincial approaches to the national strategies.

- The Office of Aboriginal Affairs will continue to meet with other Maritime officials to pursue information sharing and collaborative opportunities.
- The Government is party to the Mi'kmaq-Canada-Nova Scotia Tripartite Forum. OAA will continue to coordinate provincial involvement on the Mi'kmaq-Canada-Nova Scotia Tripartite Forum with our Federal and Mi'kmaq counterparts. With the introduction of the treaty and related issues negotiation, the Forum will be focused on addressing social and economic issues of mutual interest.
- OAA will provide support for the 10th annual Mi'kmaq Treaty Day events held at Province House in the Fall of 2002.
- OAA will continue to provide a corporate approach on bilateral and trilateral initiatives with departments, Governments and Aboriginal entities to develop working relations, provide information, develop skills, enhance awareness and facilitate effective discussions to reach common understanding and mutually acceptable approaches.

3. Interdepartmental Coordination, Policy Analysis and Strategic Advice

- With the assistance of departments and agencies, OAA will work on developing and implementing an Aboriginal Policy Framework to guide Government's overall approach to Aboriginal issues. The Policy Framework will be consistent with and support Government's overall strategic direction on economic and social policy. This Framework will enhance the effectiveness, efficiency and provide a strategic approach to Government's response on Aboriginal issues, as well as clarity with respect to roles and responsibilities.
- OAA will use a network of interdepartmental teams to support a coordinated approach to negotiations and other Aboriginal issues.
- OAA will ensure that appropriate communication tools are developed and implemented for sharing information with departments and agencies. For example, OAA will develop and implement interdepartmental protocols and policies to ensure a more consistent and coordinated approach to addressing Aboriginal issues.

- OAA will continue to work closely with departments and agencies to provide advice and support to them in defining their approaches to addressing Aboriginal issues.
- OAA will facilitate processes within Government to enhance cultural awareness of Mi'kmaq people. In the last year, a total of 120 participants from 17 departments have taken the Orientation to Mi'kmaq First Nation Culture course. In the coming year, OAA will be focusing on another course that will build on the knowledge obtained in the Orientation to Mi'kmaq First Nation Culture course by providing basic knowledge and skills that will enable them to work more effectively with Aboriginal communities and organizations in Nova Scotia.
- The office will identify, prepare and distribute Aboriginal related research and information for use by provincial departments and agencies. This includes identifying research needs and priorities, conducting research, and ensuring it is properly distributed to departments and agencies.

4. Human Resources

- Given the complexity of issues and technical expertise required within the Office, OAA is committed to the Government wide goal of a professional public service. The Office is committed to building staff strengths and diverse skills to ensure staff have the competencies necessary to achieve current and future goals of the Office.
