Introduction

This report presents data from Nova Scotia Health Authority (NSHA) and the IWK Health Centre (IWK) related to emergency department (ED) closures between April 1, 2020 – March 31, 2021.

Emergency departments (ED) and Intensive Care Units (ICU) continue to experience disruptions due to a combination of factors including staff shortage, difficulty in recruiting in rural Nova Scotia and occupational health and safety, infection prevention and control and public health measures, resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic. Despite these challenges, the government and NSHA continue to work collaboratively to improve access to quality healthcare in Nova Scotia. Investments in several key initiatives are helping to reintroduce health services and programs impacted by COVID-19 and ensure Nova Scotians have access to the care they need when they need it.

The government, in collaboration with Doctors Nova Scotia and NSHA, is creating more pathways for doctors and other health-care professionals to practice in the province. The new Office of Healthcare Professionals Recruitment is working to ensure the Province recruits and retains enough doctors, nurses, and other healthcare professionals to improve access to care across Nova Scotia.

Continued support and investment in health professionals' recruitment efforts includes increasing the number of nurse practitioners working in long term care, a nursing mentorship program to help match new graduates with jobs in Nova Scotia, expansion of VirtualCareNS, and capital investments to accommodate additional spaces for family medicine residency programs in rural communities.

Timely access to quality healthcare and supporting return to optimal healthcare service delivery remains top priority, and the new plan "Hope for Health Care" involves short- and longer-term strategies to improve wait times, patient care, and how to recruit and retain healthcare workers.

Responsibilities and Accountabilities

The Annual Accountability Report on Emergency Departments for the fiscal year ending March 31, 2020, is prepared pursuant to Section 6 of the Emergency Department Accountability Act (2014). This Act requires the Nova Scotia Health Authority and the IWK Health Centre report on all emergency department closures, hold public consultations in communities that have experienced a pattern of ongoing closures, and report on the outcomes of those consultations directly to the Minister of Health and Wellness.

Some hospitals in the province have established hours of operation that are different than 24/7. These are considered scheduled hours of closure and were established after consultation with communities. In 2020–21, 15 hospitals experienced temporary closures because of emergency department staff (nurses, physicians, or paramedics) unavailability.

The government and NSHA continue working collaboratively to advance initiatives that will improve the quality and access of healthcare in Nova Scotia. There have been investments in a number of areas including a new contract with the province's doctors that will help with access and recruitment; a commitment to hire graduating nurses for the next five years, an increase in the number of seats for nurse practitioner training and for doctor training at Dalhousie medical school; continued work on the once-in-a-generation redevelopment of health infrastructure through the QEII New Generation and Cape Breton Regional Municipality Health Care Redevelopment projects as well as infrastructure investments in South Shore Regional, Yarmouth Regional, North Cumberland, and Cumberland Regional Hospitals.

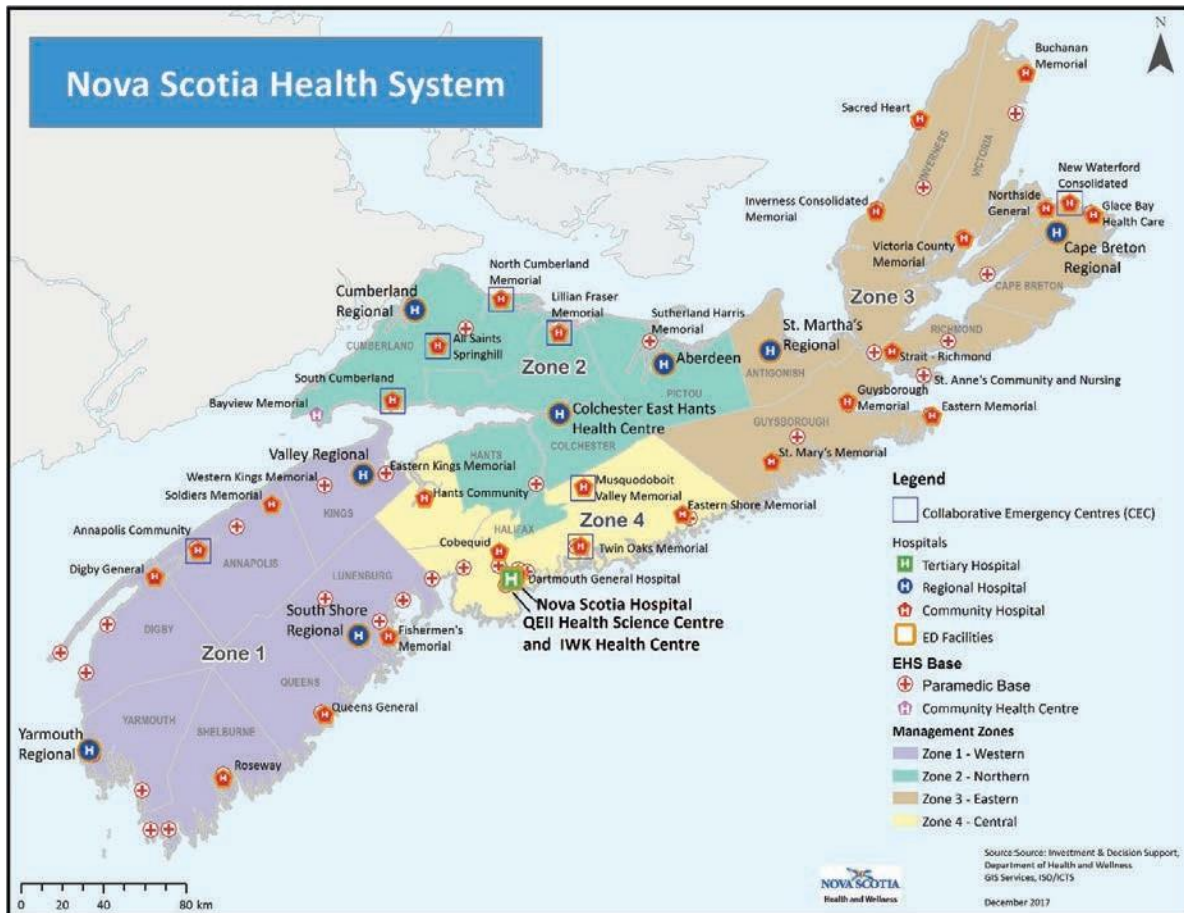

At the same time, the government continues to expand collaborative family practice teams across the province, as well as collaborating with pharmacists, paramedics, and other healthcare professionals to enable them to work to their full scope of practice, giving Nova Scotians another option to access the care they need.

On March 22, 2020, Nova Scotia declared a state of emergency to help contain the spread of COVID-19. In the weeks leading up to the pandemic and in anticipation of its singular focus on providing healthcare service during a global pandemic, NSHA canceled all public meetings, including public consultations, on emergency department closures.

Emergency Care in Nova Scotia

Emergency departments (EDs) and their staff are an essential part of the province’s healthcare system, quickly assessing and managing patients with unexpected illness or injury.

Most of Nova Scotia’s 38 emergency departments operate on a 24/7 schedule, except for seven that have established different hours of operation after consultation with communities. These facilities are considered to have scheduled hours of closure. Unplanned emergency department closures are considered temporary closures. Typically, these closures are due to unavailability of emergency department staff (doctors, nurses, or paramedics). Fifteen community hospitals experienced temporary closures in 2020–2021.

Most temporary closures occur in smaller, rural emergency departments. Tertiary care (IWK Health Centre and QEII Health Sciences Centre) and regional hospital emergency departments are required to be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year. In community hospitals, when an ED has experienced an ongoing pattern of closures, NSHA consults with the local community to address concerns and identify a course of action.

More information on consultations held in 2020–21 is included in this report.

Emergency Department Closures

Percentage of Scheduled Hours Open for Emergency Department, 2020-21

Hours of Operation and Collaborative Emergency Centres

---

Nova Scotia’s emergency care system includes two tertiary care hospitals (QEII and IWK); nine regional hospitals; 19 community hospitals with emergency departments; eight collaborative emergency centres, and a 24/7/365 emergency health services (EHS) system. In addition, the province has a telecare service (811) to provide nursing advice and help callers determine the most appropriate level of care for their needs, and a mobile mental health line to support people in crisis.

Facility Type	Scheduled hours of operation
QEII and IWK	24/7
Regional hospital	24/7
Community hospital	Varies by facility
Collaborative Emergency Centre	Varies by facility
911 Emergency Health Services	24/7
811 Nurse Telecare	24/7
Mobile crisis line	24/7

Regional hospitals are required to maintain a 24/7, year-round schedule, and every effort is made to maintain a 24/7, year-round schedule for community hospitals with emergency departments.

CHANGES TO SCHEDULED HOURS IN 2020–21

At the beginning of 2020, the province worked collaboratively with NSHA to plan and prepare for providing health service delivery during the COVID-19 pandemic. This included the consolidation of various emergency services, reassignment of emergency and critical care trained registered nurses, as well as model of care enhancements at various emergency departments to ensure Nova Scotians had access to emergency care when needed.

As of September 3, 2021 the ED and ICU at Cumberland Regional Health Care (CRHCC) reduced ICU beds from five to three and closed two intermediate care unit beds. To minimize disruptions, the NSHA redirected resources (nursing staff) to CRHCC from nearby community based care at All Saints Springhill Hospital (ASSH). As of October 1, 2021, ASSH Collaborative Emergency Center (CEC) is reducing its daily operating hours from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., to 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday to Friday, freeing up four full-time equivalent (FTE) registered nurses (RN) for redeployment to the CHRCC Emergency department.

On September 29, 2019, the New Waterford Consolidated Hospital closed its emergency department to complete renovations as required by the local fire marshal.

COLLABORATIVE EMERGENCY CENTRES

Collaborative Emergency Centres (CECs) were designed to provide access to primary healthcare with same-day or next-day appointments with expanded hours and a team approach to care. During nighttime hours, most CECs have a collaborative care team available made up of paramedics and/or RNs who are supported by an Emergency Health Services (EHS) physician providing oversight via phone consultation. There are eight CECs across the province.

Facility	Community	Scheduled hours of operation **
South Cumberland Community Care Centre	Parrsboro	Closed since March 2020*

Temporary ED Closure Hours and Public Consultations by Zone

Where an emergency department of a health authority has experienced an ongoing pattern closure of the emergency department in the last fiscal year, the health authority shall consult with the community served by the emergency department as part of the consultations conducted in accordance with the next public engagement plan as defined by the Health Authorities Act (Emergency Department Accountability Act, 2014<sup>1</sup>).

The following consultations were conducted based on facilities that experienced an ongoing pattern of temporary closures.
