

Could your organization make use of data about the types and frequency of crime in your region?

Are you aware of the online tool Crime Prevention and Reduction Profiles?

Join us for free, hands-on, training sessions this fall:

- October 29th in New Glasgow;
- November 5th in Mulgrave;
- November 12th in Liverpool; and
- November 22nd in Coldbrook

Crime Prevention and Reduction Profiles and Policy View on Community Counts provides statistical information about crime and associated risk factors for police districts and justice centres across Nova Scotia. These tools were developed by the Nova Scotia departments of Justice and Finance with funding from the National Crime Prevention Centre using data from Statistics Canada.

In this 3-hour session, you will learn

- how to navigate the Community Counts website through hands-on use of a computer
- what data is available
- how to use the tool to understand data about the types and frequency of crime in your region
- how to use recently added features, such as detailed breakdowns of crime by type and mapping community assets for crime prevention

To reserve your seat, complete the enclosed registration form and send it to Anna Huntley, Nova Scotia Department of Justice, by e-mail or fax.

For more information about the training sessions, contact Malcolm Shookner, Manager of Nova Scotia Community Counts, at shooknmr@gov.ns.ca or call (902) 424-3247.
