

Training for Registration Appeal Committee Members

JENNIFER HEMEON, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
NOVA SCOTIA REGULATED HEALTH PROFESSIONS NETWORK

Outline

- Introduction to the Network
- About the Project
- Consultation

Great things happen when organizations work together.
Assuring public safety through professional regulation.

WHAT IS THE NETWORK?

We are the combined conscience of Nova Scotia's self-regulated health professions. As a network of health regulators we work together to uphold and protect the public through collaborative regulation.

About the Project

Implement training resource
(e.g., online learning module)
for registration appeal
committee members

Deliverables

- Build engagement among members to foster and enable collaboration.
- Activities/initiatives to support Network members individually and collectively in their regulatory responsibilities, aligned with the Network mandate.
- To support member organizations working toward gold standard regulatory practices.

Network-led Training

- Meets expectations of the Fairness Review Office – formal and structured, specific to conducting an internal review, and verifies training received
- Prevents the need for a regulatory body to establish and maintain their own program
- Prevents “reinventing the wheel”
- Supports capacity of regulatory bodies challenged with resources

Network-led Training

- Consistent training on the broad principles applicable to the committee's function for all regulatory bodies
- Accessible anytime by any regulatory body
- Self-directed and appeals to various learning styles
- Addresses concern about training committee members when there is not an imminent need for committee to hear an appeal.

Today's Evaluation Form

- Would you volunteer to sit on a working group to develop the training module?
- What are existing tools that could be incorporated into the training module? Example: Harvard Implicit Association test, video clips, suggested readings.
- Recommendations for online learning platform
- Words of wisdom

Consultation

- Small groups report back to larger group
- To guide the development of the training resource, what content should be incorporated into the Network-led training module relevant to the internal review process?
