1. Message from the Minister and Deputy Head

I am pleased to present the 2010–2011 Statement of Mandate for the Department of Labour and Workforce Development.

Introduced in 2008–2009, the Department's four-year Strategic Plan will continue to guide our programs and initiatives through 2011 as we work toward achieving a vision of fairness, safety and prosperity for all Nova Scotians by living, learning and working to our highest potential.

In pursuit of this vision, the Department of Labour and Workforce Development will help build a skilled and competitive workforce from the ground up, by fostering an exceptional culture of learning in Nova Scotia.

As members of a learning province, Nova Scotians will enjoy improved access to informal learning programs at work and obtain increased support when transitioning from school to work, from unemployment to work or training and during times of career advancement. The Department will also implement the Recognition of Prior Learning Framework, and explore ways to assist Nova Scotians in gaining recognition for the skills and competencies they have achieved through life experiences and alternative educational pathways—including adult and workplace learning, apprenticeship training and participation in the voluntary sector. In addition, special attention will be paid to increasing the inclusion of under-represented populations in the workforce and facilitating the labour mobility of workers coming into the Province from other jurisdictions.

In Nova Scotia workplaces, safety is a shared responsibility among employers, supervisors and employees. The Department is invested in this responsibility. In the coming year, the Department will review the Liquor Control Act; update the Occupational Health and Safety General Regulations and create new regulations under the Technical Safety Act. To promote efficiency and effectiveness, we will continue our commitment to modernize regulations for pensions and for our Agencies, Boards, Commissions and Tribunals. The Department will continue to promote fairness and stability in the workforce by administering its labour laws in a fair and equitable manner.

Through recognition of the experience and learning potential of all Nova Scotians and by providing further opportunities for skill development, the Department of Labour and Workforce Development will foster a culture of lifelong learning in the Province that improves how we live, work and play.

5. Mandate

Nova Scotia Labour and Workforce Development ensures the workforce is competitive by making strategic investments in people, programs, services and partnerships that contribute to a fair, equitable, safe, productive and inclusive environment in which to learn, work and live.

The broad mandate of the Department encompasses regulatory responsibility for occupational health and safety, public safety, alcohol and gaming, pensions, labour relations, and labour standards. The Department administers over 20 Acts and 100 regulations, and employs approximately 100 inspectors across its 3 major inspectorates.

The Department's mission is accomplished by applying both regulatory and non-regulatory compliance tools such as public education and communications, standard setting, codes of practice, promotion of partnerships and stewardship agreements, and economic instruments.

The Department also offers dispute resolution services that promote effective workplace relationships and provides advice, assistance and representation to injured workers served by the Workers' Advisers Program.

Improving access among Nova Scotians to labour market information and the employment and learning programs and services that support their labour market attachment and growth is a key aspect to the Department. Strategic action is taken to align the needs of employees with those of employers and help all Nova Scotians prepare for, find and keep employment. Through adult learning, literacy and essential skills, apprenticeship and skills development programs, the Department provides opportunities for individuals to advance at home, in the community or in the workplace.

Nova Scotia Labour and Workforce Development remains dedicated to protecting the public and maintaining and growing a safe and prosperous workforce in Nova Scotia. Over 2010–2011, the Department will engage in several horizontal initiatives focused upon safety, regulation, skill development, education and building partnerships. These initiatives will correlate with existing Government frameworks, policies and economic priorities, and will involve collaborations with education providers and stakeholders in the industry, labour, business, and community sectors.
