Letter from the Chief Worker Adviser

The Workers' Advisers Program had another busy and productive year in 2010/2011. At year-end the Program had 977 active files. During the year the Program had 1040 requests for service, 983 files were opened, and we provided service to 1907 clients.

The majority of the Program's work continued to be at the Workers' Compensation Appeals Tribunal. In 2010/2011 the Program filed 393 appeals with the Appeals Tribunal on behalf of workers. We also filed 170 appeals to Hearings Officers and 5 appeals to the Nova Scotia Court of Appeal.

We didn't have much success this year in appeals to the Nova Scotia Court of Appeal. However, the Court's decisions in Gillis-Andrea and Brewer at least gave us more clarity about when workers are covered under the Workers' Compensation Act and the scope of workers' entitlement to workers' compensation benefits.

The average wait time for intake services was 6.4 weeks, a little over the Program's target of 6 weeks. The most important reason for this statistic is the increasingly litigious and adversarial nature of our work. Whereas just a few years ago active employer involvement in appeals was not common, employers now regularly contest workers' appeals. This issue has significant implications for the workers' compensation system, including contributing to delays in dealing with appeals, and warrants further discussion among stakeholders in the workers' compensation system.

The Program also finished the year just slightly over budget, at 102% of our authority. One reason for this statistic is the increasing costs associated with obtaining medical information the Program requests to help in the pursuit of workers' appeals. The need to obtain medical information in more cases is also related to the greater litigiousness of our work.

Another reason for being over budget was that in March 2010 we received approval for an Articled Clerk to work at the Program. It then took time to arrange for advertising, interviews, and hiring the successful candidate for the position, who started in September 2010. The costs associated with the Articled Clerk position, including for mandatory education, was not included in the 2010/2011 budget authority for the Program and those costs were covered within the existing budget authority.

I served as principal for the Articled Clerk, the first time I ever did this. I also believe this was the first time the Workers' Advisers Program hired an Articled Clerk. This was a valuable and rewarding experience for me and the whole office. The Articled Clerk position also aligned well with the Program's succession planning as we have staff that are nearing retirement.

In May 2010 I participated in a day-long symposium for employers hosted by the Office of the Employer Advisor. In this symposium I sat on a panel that took questions from the audience and I also took part in a mock Appeals Tribunal hearing. Staff from the Appeals Tribunal and the Workers' Compensation Board also took part in this symposium. This was a good experience and provided an opportunity for employers to learn more about Nova Scotia's workers' compensation system.

In September 2010 I attended the annual CAWAA meeting, held this year in western Newfoundland. This meeting and CAWAA telephone conferences throughout the year are great opportunities to network and exchange information with counterparts from across the country.

In October 2010 I made a presentation to a meeting of the federal Bureau of Pension Advocates, who represent military and RCMP staff seeking benefits relating to injuries arising from their service. My presentation dealt with the role of the Workers' Advisers Program and some legal issues of interest to provincial and federal advocates for workers' benefits and interests. Attending this meeting was a great opportunity to network and exchange information with federal counterparts.

In November 2010 I sat on a panel and made a presentation to labour and worker representatives at a symposium on workplace stress hosted by the Office of the Worker Counsellor. We had a lively discussion about workplace stress, including the possibility of a challenge under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms against the current restrictions on paying workers' compensation benefits for workplace stress.

I continued to serve as a member of the Heads of Agencies Committee and the Issues Resolution Working Group as we worked to try to improve services to stakeholders of the Workplace Safety and Insurance System (WSIS). In my role as Chief Worker Advisor, I participated in the WSIS Annual General Meeting in May 2010 and the WSIS Fall Consultation Conference in November 2010.

I also continued to meet and discuss various workers' compensation issues with Ms. Jessie Parkinson of the Office of the Workers' Counsellor and members of Injured Workers' Associations in the province.

Over the course of the year, myself and other staff from the Workers' Advisers Program worked with the WSIS Liaison Officer, a pilot project position operated out of the Workers' Compensation Board's Legal Department, to try to resolve certain appeals in an informal manner and quicker than if they had proceeded along the ordinary appeal route.

I continued in my role as Chair of the Human Resource Initiatives Team for the Department of Labour and Advanced Education. I also regularly attended meetings of the Department's Senior Management Team and with my fellow directors from the Department's Labour Services Branch.

We look forward to another busy and successful year in 2011/2012.

Submitted,

Kenny LeBlanc
Chief Worker Adviser

Mandate and History

Workers injured and covered under Nova Scotia's Workers' Compensation Act are protected through benefits and services available under a no-fault insurance system. Through what is known as the historic trade-off, workers and their families give up the right to sue for the consequences of work-related injuries in return for compensation payable regardless of fault and without the need to pursue a lawsuit in court. The other side of the historic trade-off is that employers are responsible to pay assessments to cover the cost of the system in return for immunity from liability due to work-related injuries.

The Workers' Compensation Board of Nova Scotia (WCB), established under Part I of the Act, is the policy-leader for the workers' compensation system, administers the Accident Fund made up of employers' assessments which covers the costs of the system, and is responsible for investigating and adjudicating claims in the first instance. Workers or employers may appeal WCB decisions to the Nova Scotia Workers' Compensation Appeals Tribunal (WCAT), established under Part II of the Act. There is a limited right of appeal from WCAT decisions to the Nova Scotia Court of Appeal.

The Workers' Advisers Program of Nova Scotia is established under Part III of the Act and the regulations as an independent legal clinic to provide free assistance, advice, and representation to injured workers and their families claiming workers' compensation benefits and who meet the Program's eligibility criteria. As a general rule, if the Program determines that a worker has a reasonable expectation of success of obtaining at least $500 or its equivalent in an appeal of a claim, that worker will meet the Program's eligibility criteria for service.

The Program receives the funding for its operations by way of a grant from the Accident Fund.

The Chief Worker Adviser is responsible for supervising the Program and reports to the Minister of Nova Scotia's Department of Labour and Advanced Education. The Program's head office is in Halifax and we have an office in Sydney.

Workers' Advisers (who are lawyers and non-lawyers) with the Program travel throughout the province to meet with workers and discuss their claims and represent them at hearings at all levels of appeal in the workers' compensation system, including Court if necessary. Only Workers' Advisers who are lawyers are allowed to represent workers in Court.

The Workers' Advisers Program was established in February 1996 when Part III, along with most of the rest of the current Workers' Compensation Act, was proclaimed into force. The Program under Part III replaced the former Workers' Counselors' Program, which administered a certificate system whereby private law firms around the province provided legal representation to workers in connection with their workers' compensation claims.

The Program's staff arranged for the opening of the Sydney office in May 1997. The Program has maintained the Halifax and Sydney offices since that time, while monitoring the caseload by county to determine whether other offices in other parts of the province should be opened.

Annual Program Expenditures

The total cost associated with the operation of the Program is charged to the Accident Fund administered by the WCB. The final 2010-2011 report provided by the Department of Finance indicates the following expenditures:

Client Services

The service provided to workers by the Workers' Advisers Program can include representation through all phases of appeal in the workers' compensation system. It can begin with the first denial at the WCB and end when an appeal is completed or the worker is no longer eligible for service.

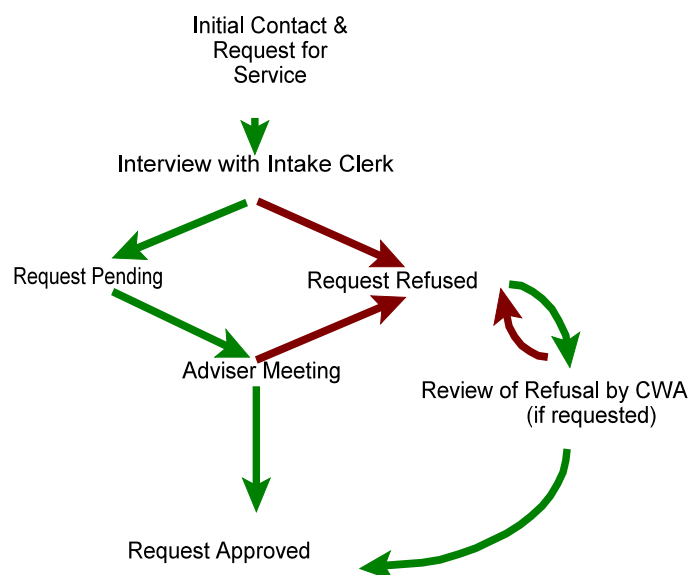

Intake

The Program's intake process first determines if the worker's request for service results from a written WCB decision. The Program's Intake Clerk is the point person for a worker's initial contact with the Program. If the worker does not have a written decision, the Intake Clerk will usually refuse service, but that worker may be referred to the Office of the Worker Counselor for assistance.

If the worker has a written WCB decision, the Intake Clerk will take the necessary information and open a file which will be assigned to a Workers' Adviser. Subsequently, the Workers' Adviser will contact the worker and arrange to discuss the claim and appeal in person or by telephone.

A worker refused service may request the application to be forwarded to the Chief Worker Adviser for review and further consideration.

A worker requesting service from the Program for the first time as a result of a WCAT decision bypasses the usual intake process and is referred directly to the Chief Worker Adviser for review and consideration. This process is followed in relation to WCAT decisions because a worker only has 30 days under the Workers' Compensation Act to file a possible appeal to the Nova Scotia Court of Appeal from a WCAT decision.

The Program continues to monitor the waiting time for service on a monthly basis. Our goal is to respond to requests for service by meeting with the worker within 6 weeks of their initial request. The provincial average waiting period for 2010-11 was 6.4 weeks (includes local and out-of-town times).

The waiting period for service for all intake is calculated from the date the worker first contacts the Intake Clerk to the date of the worker's first appointment with a Workers' Adviser (in person or by telephone) to discuss the worker's appeal. Factors affecting service wait times include access to the WCB claim file, both paper and electronic, and the Workers' Advisers' travel to out-of-town appointments and workload.

Client Count by County

On April 1, 2010, the Program had 927 active files. On March 31, 2011, there were 977 active files, a 5.4 percent increase over the course of the year with an average of 942 open files between April 1 and March 31.

File Distribution

Representation

Workers' Advisers provide representation to injured worker and their families pursuing workers' compensation benefits and services. Workers' Advisers consult with workers and others regarding claims, attend meetings and hearings, and obtain evidence and present it to workers' compensation decision makers.

Workers' Advisers have good access to research and other resources required to pursue appeals and are familiar with issues and pressures affecting injured workers and strive to achieve an effective working relationship with them.

The Workers' Advisers Program does not represent injured workers as a special interest group or lobby government for changes in legislation. The Program does not pursue other matters outside of workers' compensation claims, such as Canada Pension benefits, Unemployment Insurance, or Social Assistance.

Workers' Advisers do not represent employers and they do not advise or represent governments or other agencies.

- ▶ Workers typically file their own appeals to the Hearing Officer before going through the Program’s intake process.
- ▶ The Program filed 5 new appeals were filed to the Court of Appeal during the year 2010/2011. The ability to appeal to the Court of Appeal is limited because an appeal can only be made from an Appeals Tribunal decision on a question of law or jurisdiction pursuant to s.256 of the Workers’ Compensation Act.

Client Satisfaction

Client Survey Results

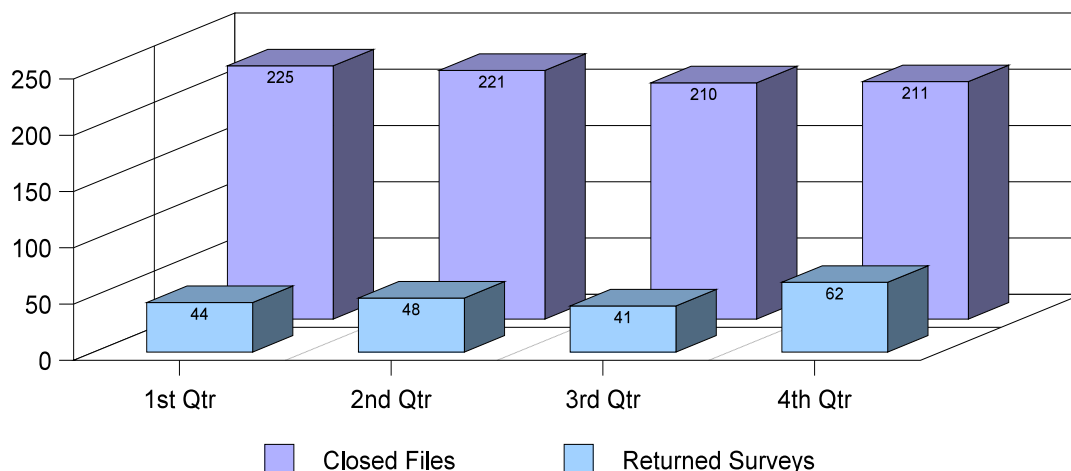

The Program began mailing satisfaction surveys to clients with their closed file in April 2003. This practice will continue so that future results will allow us to track satisfaction trends and address service issues.

Although 27.7% percent of the clients returning surveys did not have a positive outcome with respect to their appeal (54 divided by 195 surveys returned), only 10 negative comments were received (5.1%). Our satisfaction rate remains high.

Based on the data obtained from the returned surveys, we can determine that 92.3% of our clients “strongly agreed” or “agreed” that the service provided by the Program staff satisfied their requirements.

Committees and Associations

Canadian Association of Workers' Advisers and Advocates

The Canadian Association of Workers' Advisers and Advocates (CAWAA) is a national organization established to develop a professional system of sharing information and best practices across jurisdictions and explore emerging workers' compensation issues relevant to workers while respecting its members' distinct workers' compensation mandates.

The Chief Worker Adviser represents the Nova Scotia Workers' Advisers Program at this association and chairs its Research Committee. Additional information on this association is available on their website: <http://cawaa.org/>

Workplace Safety and Insurance System Advisory Councils and Working Groups

Nova Scotia's Workplace Safety and Insurance System (WSIS) includes workers, employers, the relevant statutory agencies (the WCB, WCAT, the Occupational Health and Safety Division of the Department of Labour and Advanced Education, and the Workers' Advisers Program), and others who provide services in the system. Additional information is available on the WSIS website: <http://www.wsis.ns.ca/index.php>

The System Liaison Committee is comprised of representatives of the worker and employer communities, each of the four system partner agencies (the WCB, WCAT, the Occupational Health and Safety Division of the Department of Labour and Advanced Education, and the Workers' Advisers Program), members of the Occupational Health and Safety Advisory Council and members of the WCB's Board of Directors. The role of this Committee is to advise the WSIS Coordinating Committee (consisting of the Chair of the WCB Board of Directors and the Deputy Minister of the Department of Labour and Advanced Education) on various workers' compensation issues.

The Issues Resolution Working Group and a sub-committee, the Issues Discussion Group, consist of representatives from the Workers' Advisers Program, the WCB, and WCAT, and meets regularly to discuss workers' compensation issues and advise system partners on ways to improve issues resolution in the workers' compensation system.

- Director of the Occupational Health and Safety Division;
- Chief Worker Adviser of the Workers' Advisers Program;
- Chief Appeal Commissioner of WCAT; and
- CEO of the WCB.

Members of the Heads of Agencies Committee are responsible for the ongoing delivery of service to workers and employees in the system and for measuring and reporting of outcomes and progress in alignment with system goals. They are also responsible for coordinating strategic plan implementation.
