Experience On The Ground

GoGold Resources Inc. (TSXV: GGD) is a Canadian mineral exploration company with properties in Mexico and Canada. Our management team members are veterans of developing properties into successful producing mines. Terry Coughlan, CEO and Brad Langille, Strategic Advisor, developed the Ocampo Mine which is one of the largest gold and silver mines in Mexico. Together with other members of the senior executive, they have raised hundreds of millions of dollars in capital markets to bring mines into production.

The San Diego Property

San Diego, the company's flagship property, is a massive 70 987 hectare claim located in Mexico's Durango state, one of the largest epithermal precious metal regions in the world and host to the majority of Mexico's gold and silver deposits. This well-established mining region features supportive local inhabitants, cooperative local and district governments, and existing infrastructure including local workforce, power to property, road access, accommodations and water.

The San Diego area contains an epithermal gold/silver system that extends for more than 35 kilometres. Widespread gold in quartz veins, breccias and stockworks occurs over the length of the system. Gold and silver are exposed at the surface and the hillsides are punctuated with dozens of small hand dug mines. Although the district has been mined on a small scale since the 1700s there has been very little modern exploration.

The property contains multiple geological exploration targets, each representing potentially impressive bulk mineable and/or underground operations. To date, the company has taken 918 samples within the Breccia Hill Open Pit Target averaging 1.23 g/t gold and 13.15 g/t silver, for a gold equivalent of 1.52 g/t at a 46:1 silver to gold ratio. Drill roads and pads have been prepared and drilling has started as of August 15, 2011. GoGold President and CEO, Terry Coughlan has stated, "The area is reminiscent of when Brad Langille and I first visited Ocampo in 1999 where we developed one of the largest gold mines in Mexico which now employs over 3,000 people. GoGold today is well positioned financially and we look forward to advancing our exploration activities in the district."
